RE: Environmental Review for Comprehensive Plan – North Beach, Calvert County, Maryland.

Dear Ms. Parks:

The Wildlife and Heritage Service's Natural Heritage database indicates that there is a record for Long-awned Diplachne (Leptochloa fascicularis), a plant species with Uncertain State status that is considered to be Rare, known to occur within the town limits. It is documented as occurring in the marshy habitat on the north side of town. The wetlands that support this species are designated by local ordinances as a Habitat Protection Area within the Critical Area.

In addition, our analysis of the information provided also suggests that the forested area on the project site contains Forest Interior Dwelling Bird habitat. Populations of many Forest Interior Dwelling Bird species (FIDS) are declining in Maryland and throughout the eastern United States. The conservation of FIDS habitat is mandated within the Chesapeake Bay Critical Area.

Also, the open waters that are adjacent to or part of the site are known historic waterfowl concentration areas. If there is to be any construction of water-dependent facilities we would generally review such projects for impacts to these concentration areas.

Thank you for allowing us the opportunity to review this project. If you should have any further questions regarding this information, please contact me at (410) 260-8573.

Sincerely,

Lori A. Byrne,
Environmental Review Coordinator
